

RTA's Public Transport Hackathon 2019

Students of Al Falah University participated in the 3rd edition of the Road and Transport Authority's Public Transport Hackathon 2019 at the Burj Khalifa for three days. The event is an initiative of the International Association of Public Transport for the Youth for Public Transport (Y4PT) project. The event's aim is to attract university and college students to be involved in advancing and developing innovative and sustainable transport solutions.

Hackathon is one of the numerous ventures of RTA to overcome the challenges citizens experience when it comes to public transportation and safety while on the roads.
