

English Communication Class for Housewives Our Community Engagement Endeavour

At Al Falah University we believe in joint efforts. Our services are not restricted only to our students but we break the barriers to reach our community. The Students Affairs Department with the collaboration of Department of General Education has organized a two-month "English Communication Course for Housewives". This course will focus on speaking, listening and reading context of English language to familiarize the ladies with the vocal use of the language in their everyday lives. Our distinguished faculty member Ms. Aysha Ehsan is conducting the course. Her diversified experience in teaching language has already made her popular among the students and this is could be witnessed in their broad grins!

This is just our beginning, we aim to reach every home and cater to all your educational needs.
